Currently there is an inundation of online discount programs - These are separate and in addition to each individual retailer loyalty program and bank credit card rewards. Consumers don't want 50+ apps on their phone all geared toward "price savings" and each program having different reward parameters to meet and keep track of.

Retailers face these additional concerns

The problem with too much discounting -

Every person has their own expectations of how much an item should cost based on their previous experiences and the prices they see whilst shopping. These are known as 'reference prices'.

According to the American Psychological Association, when you use a discount on your product too often, this lower promotional price may become merged into a customer's reference price. This will lower their willingness to pay for your product when it is no longer discounted, as their idea of how much this product should cost has been altered.

When you discount too much or too often, this new price may become expected, and drive previously happy customers away.

Lowering the perceived quality of your brand -

Consumers are more likely to believe that a brand that promotes more often than others is of poorer quality than others in that industry, while a brand that promotes less often is perceived to be of better quality.

Banks are hearing these concerns from customers

The latest CFPS report indicates that consumer complaints include that rewards are often devalued or denied even after program terms are met and that credit card companies focus marketing efforts on rewards, like cash back and travel, instead of on low interest rates and fees. Consumers who carry revolving balances complain they often pay far more in interest and fees than they get back on rewards and credit card companies often use rewards programs as a "bait and switch" by burying terms in vague language or fine print and changing the value of rewards after people sign up and earn them.

How to get around this?...

Consumers expressing demand for a universal discount platform – National research survey

Actual panelist responses:

- “I think having a single discount/promotional card is a great concept and would be willing to pay based on retailer membership and expected savings of at least 20% or more.”
- “I think it sounds like a great Idea, I would have to see what kind of discounts were being offered, and at which retailers, if they were good, I would probably be willing to spend more than $100 per year.”
- “I like the concept of one card.”
- “The universal card described would be a great benefit.”
- “With the prices rising, promotional discount shopping is the way to go.”

Retailer comment

Kohl's – Prior Director of Direct Marketing, Loyalty & Email Strategy

It was stated that Kohl's had believed for some time that there should be ONE neutral universal platform venue / channel on which all retailers could reside. Also, he said that when our venture was to launch, Kohl's could NOT afford to miss out at being a participating retailer with the + CLUB offering, being interested in such involvement along with other big-box retailers like Target and JCPenney.

Bank comments

US Bank -

Stated having access to retailer' POS registers in this way is something that they have had interest in for years. They would like to join the + CLUB platform if one of the big three banks joins first (CHASE, Citi or Bank of America).

J.P. Morgan Chase Bank -

Stated that they would be interested in + CLUB participation if there was interest in participation from “big-box” retailers like Kohl's Department Stores, with whom they work closely (Chase Freedom Card) and consider to be an “excellent” example of a high-quality major big-box retailer.

So how to get started?...

- Financial institutions e.g., CHASE, BofA, Citi, CapitalOne...etc. determines which customers to extend + CLUB 3-month free trial memberships to.
- Financial institutions markets to the selected pool of “proven buyer consumers” the benefits of + CLUB to encourage trial usage.
- Financial institutions issue the physical + CLUB cards to 100 million selected customers, and the 3-month trial period begins.

Bank issued
+ CLUB card/membership

- After 3-month free trial period consumers will decide if they want to purchase an annual membership to + CLUB and enjoy instant discounts at the point-of-sale both in-store and online at the + CLUB shopping portal, as well as what level of membership to purchase.
- + CLUB members who choose to shop online on the portal will enjoy the same great exclusive discounts that are offered at the individual store locations.
- Additionally, on the + CLUB online shopping portal members will be also able to enjoy a true shopping social network experience chatting in shopping forums, rating retailers, posting videos, participate in retailer sponsored contests and review/blog about purchases.

Retailers have sole discretion of + CLUB offered discounts, and all online purchases are finalized on the merchant's website.

- Utilizing Artificial Intelligence, + CLUB members will get individual specific targeted discounts based on their + CLUB consumer shopping behavior.
- For the first time ever + CLUB will allow members to actually request a lower price on a specific store item from multiple retailers at once, creating a unique and powerful C2B bid process.

Payments for purchases to be made in stores or on the merchant's ecommerce website.

Purchases picked up at store or delivered by USPO, UPS, FedEx or others.

A consumer does a random search online on any browser for a 22" charcoal grill, options appear matching that request. The first grill happens to be one offered by Home Depot, and the consumer selects it.

The consumer now sees this particular grill offered by Home Depot in multiple color options and can proceed to purchase, or the shopper can look on + CLUB for discount options at the + CLUB shopping portal.

The consumer is now directed to the + CLUB sign-in screen which will allow + CLUB members to garner access to the AI component of the multi-tiered discount pricing calculation, with non-members paying the base price.

VIEWING INSTRUCTIONS: THE 3-SCREEN SAMPLE MOBILE C2B AI “LIKES” SHOPPING GRAPHIC

The next page shows a sample mobile shopping experience for a + CLUB member. For simplicity, just three screen shots were put on one page. Of course, when the shopping portal is developed by Accenture/Microsoft/HCL the functionality/look and feel will vary considerably, This provides a nice foundation for setting up the framework of what is to be developed. Please read the images from left to right to follow this short journey of a + CLUB shopper.

Recommended to return to this page while viewing the following screen for any clarification

On the left is a sample screen of the results from a + CLUB member search on the shopping portal for a 22” charcoal grill, (or coming from a search online and being directed to the + CLUB shopping portal). Important to note that this “Bing” search queries through all + CLUB retailers who offer charcoal grills and lists the lowest price offered for the type of charcoal grill currently discounted to this "particular" + CLUB member.

This hypothetical + CLUB shopper chose a Weber original kettle premium charcoal grill for $199.

*What is critical to remember is this initial price ultimately is produced and based on three factors:

1. The original + CLUB discounted price,
2. The Retailer personalized frequent shopper additional discounted price for this individual customer.
3. The + CLUB high value buyer ranking (based on the level of membership purchased).

All of this information through AI in the system can produce the price of a product search for an individual + CLUB member on the first screen.

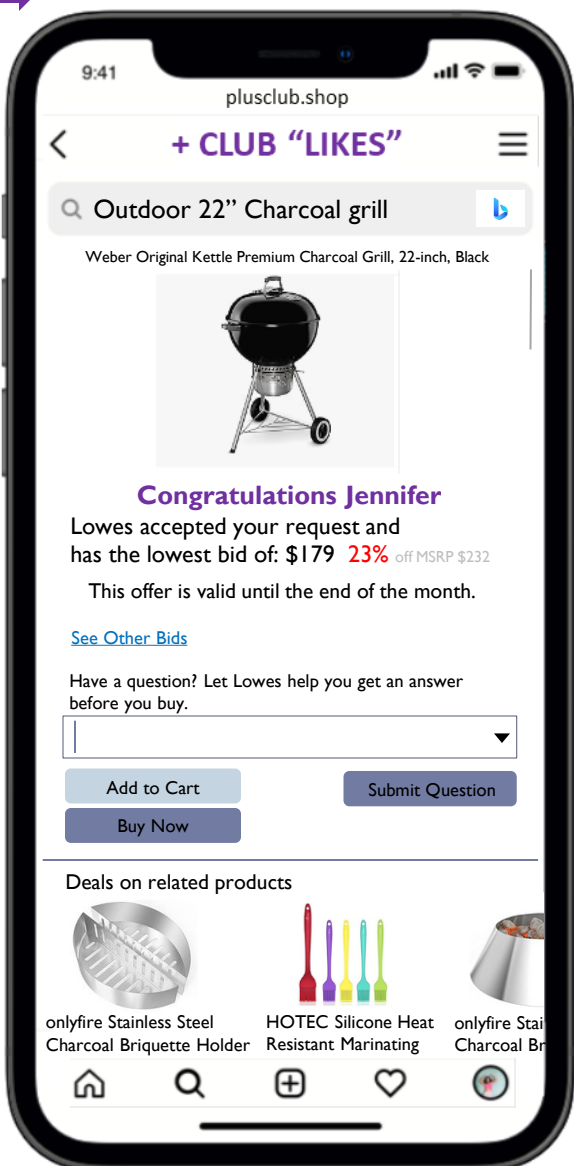

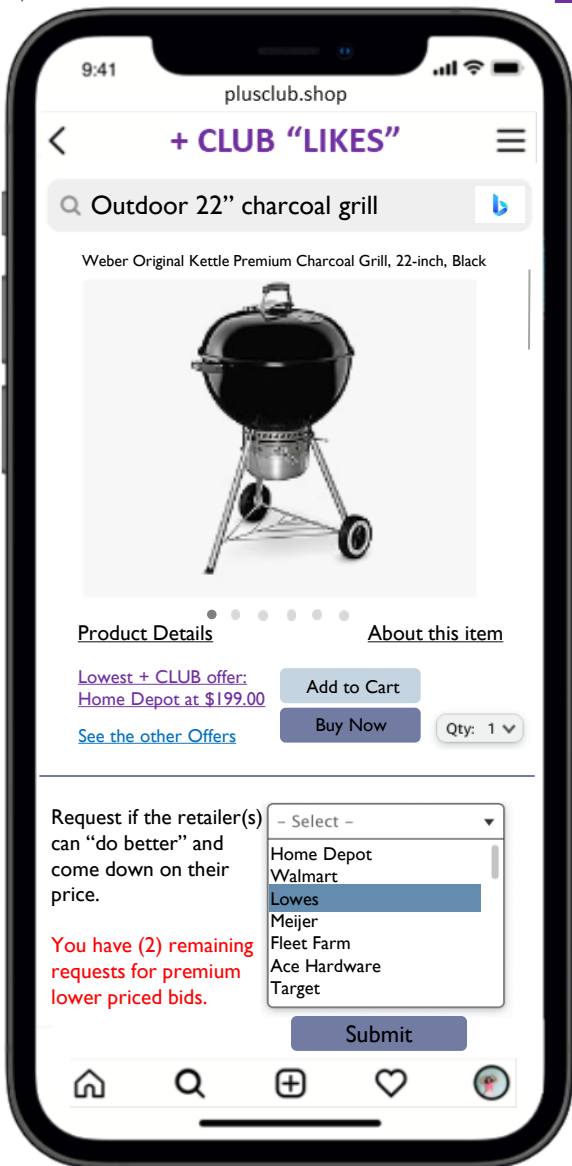

On the middle screen the + CLUB member see's which retailer has the lowest price, in this case Home Depot has the lowest price for the particular grill that she is shopping for, the shopper also has the choice to click the link to see the other retailer's prices (that additional screen not shown on the page). The shopper can click to purchase the grill from Home Depot and proceed to checkout and view shipping information and payment method (again not shown here). However, on the bottom of the second phone screen you will see the shopper has the very unique option to use one of their "three" premium requests for lower priced bids from other retailers, in this case our + CLUB shopper "Jennifer" chose to do so.

On the third screen (furthest to the right) Lowes beat out Home Depot and came in at the lowest bid of $179, and Jennifer used one of her three requests for bids and saved herself $20 from Home Depot's original discounted price of $199.

Our + CLUB member “Jennifer” now sees 22” charcoal grills offered at discount exclusively to her based on multiple AI calculated factors explained on the previous screen.

Jennifer has clicked on Home Depot’s + CLUB discounted grill at $199. Jennifer now has the unique option to requests a lower bid price from another retailer.

Jennifer did choose to use one of her three remaining requests for premium lower priced bids and Lowes came in at $179, beating Home Depot’s price of $199 for this 22” charcoal grill.

+ CLUB C2B AI “LIKES” option alternatives, including unique AI driven discounting on global Internet / mobile / app / in-store SHOPPING, available on NO other platform, enhancing the “power” of Consumers, while greatly benefiting both Retailers & Banks

This + CLUB concept addresses not just what consumers like, but specifically what they want and need from retailers, letting sellers know “exactly” what consumers are interested in without using historical prior shopping-based algorithms, which are merely educated guessing probabilities.
